Location
The north border of the Santo Nino is located seven miles SE of Patagonia, Arizona with the southern border located approximately one mile north of Mexico. It is situated on the western edge of the San Rafael Valley in the beautiful and productive Coronado National Forest.

Description
Steep hills and ridges with many draws, meadows, and canyons make up this beautiful ranch. Picturesque seasonal creeks flow through the gorgeous scenery of the Coronado National Forest.

Carrying Capacity
The carrying capacity of the Duquesne Allotment No 50381 is 185 cow/calf units year-long.

Size and Land Tenure
The Santo Nino is approximately 12,536 acres.

Deeded Land. The Santo Nino consists of two parcels of approximately 62 acres. The smaller parcel of 13.4 acres includes the headquarters with two homes, horse barn, and working corrals. The larger parcel is 48.87 acres accessible from Harshaw Road and surrounded on three sides by the Coronado National Forest.

Forage and Vegetation
The healthy and diverse population of the ranch consists of many perennials such as blue grama, sideoats grama, hairy grama, sprucetop grama, purple grama, Texas timothy, green sprangletop, cane beardgrass, curly mesquite, plains lovegrass, and several different muhlenbergias can be found in abundance. Annual grasses are present but not as abundant as perennials. Browse species include verbena, lupine, sida, Arizona blue eyes, hog potato, and fleabane. Oak, juniper, manzanita, and mesquite trees thrive on the hills and ridges along with ash, sycamore, and cottonwood trees in riparian areas in canyon bottoms.

Elevation and Precipitation
The elevation ranges from five to seven thousand feet above sea level. The documented rainfall over the last five years is 24.00 inches varying from 33.07 inches in 2010 to 17.62 inches in 2009.
